It was a book written not during those times.

It was a legal contract at that time between Arrowizer and several people.

It's not a book written from that time.

The contract doesn't have a date.

When that was done.

It has signatures of real people.

It's a friendly contract to certain people.

The contract has the signature of Andrew Johnson.

It was written about that time, but what did that time.

It has the date of the acquisition.

The book has exact pictures of those dates.
